

BEQUESTS MADE IN BOTTOMS WILL REACH TOTAL OF 7

Heirs To Receive Sums Ranging from $1,000 Down to $200

THE LOVETT ESTATE

Late Tullytown Woman Names Her Son As The Heir of Property

DOYLESTOWN, Jan. 26 — Elizabeth Bottoms, Bensalem twp., who left a $4,000 personal and $4,000 real estate holdings in Bensalem twp., created seven personal bequests in her will which was dated Jan. 10, 1951.

Heirs are Rosa L. Boarch, $1,000; Richard Powell and Edward Standfield, 4610 Vista street, Mayfair, who was named executor, each $500, Marice C. Hitchins, $300, Betty Jane McAleese, $500, and Lillian Haig, $500. Margaret D. Powell was given $200 and the testatrix died Nov. 13, 1951.

Three children, Viola Dean Alt-house, 445 South Main street, Telford, who was named the executrix; Mary Jane and Janice Claire Alt-house, were named the residuary beneficiaries of the $2,000 personal and $6,000 real estate holdings of their mother, Viola D. Alt-house. The testatrix died Nov. 20, 1951, and the will was dated Feb. 10, 1939.

Elizabeth M. Lovett, Tullytown, who left a personal estate of $1,100 and real estate valued at $750, named her son, Augustus M. Grose, Pond street, Tullytown, the heir. The will was written May 9, 1923, and in it her husband, Amos H. Lovett, was given a life right. In a codicil, added later, the son was named the sole heir. The testatrix died Nov. 23, 1951, and the son was also named executor.

Letters of administration in the estate of Edwin E. Clark, Newtown twp., were granted to Marie A. Clark, Newtown, amounting to a personal estate of $2,000. The widow and a daughter, Barbara M. Clark, are the heirs of the decedent who died Nov. 24, 1951.

A Sellersville Justice of the Peace, W. Lee Wilhelm, was granted the letters of administration in the estate of John Gordon Ferguson, of Sellersville, who died Nov. 22, 1951, and left a personal estate of $1,000. The decedent had no known heirs.

In the estate of Guy H. Culp, Falls twp., letters of administration were granted to Estelle Culp, Lang-horne, R. D. 2, amounting to a $3,400 personal estate. A son, Frederick, 2204 South 56th street, Phila., is also an heir. The decedent died Nov. 2, 1951.

Ethel C. Morgan, 31 West Philadelphia ave., Morrisville, a daughter was granted the letters of administration in the estate of Jacob Clay, Tullytown, who died Feb. 28, 1951, and left a personal estate of $350. There are 11 grandchildren as additional heirs.

Letters of administration in the estate of Elmer A. Mills, Jr., Bristol, were granted to Elmer A. Mills, Second and Leedom streets, Bristol, R. D. 2, amounting to a $350 personal estate. The father and

TO INSTALL NEW TYPE RAID WARNING SYSTEM

Work on Such a State System to Start Within a Few Days

ACCELERATE PROJECT

HARRISBURG, Jan. 26 — (INS) — Acceleration of Pennsylvania's civil defense program was heralded today by an announcement that installation of a new type air raid warning system will start within a few days.

The initial installation will start in south-central counties and later fan out to embrace all of the state, according to State Civil Defense Director Richard Gerstell.

He described it as a "bell and light instantaneous warning" which can reduce to mere seconds the transmission of alerts from key centers.

The radio and chain telephone system now in use takes from 10 to 15 minutes to accomplish its purpose, he added.

The project was one of a number approved yesterday by the State Council of Civil Defense. The cost will be paid from the $4,000,000 appropriation approved by the 1951 General Assembly and federal grants-in-aid.

"Guinea pig" area for the new warning method, according to Gerstell, will be Dauphin, Cumberland, Perry, Adams and York counties. Hooked into the network will be York, Harrisburg, Carlisle, Chambersburg, New Bloomfield, Duncannon, Lykens, Hanover and Gettysburg.

The project will be completed

Industrial Engineer To Speak to Horse Co.

NEWTOWN, Jan. 26 — Irvin Wolf, chief industrial engineer of Bethlehem Steel Co., will be guest speaker at the 134th annual meeting and banquet of the local horse company, Monday evening, at the Temperance House.

This gathering is one of the ancient traditions of the former county seat of Bucks. Although the functions for which the company was founded on February 27, 1819, at the Bird-in-Hand are no longer able to be carried out, the organization continues its charter under the original style and title of "The Newtown Reliance Company for Detecting and Apprehending of Horse Thieves and Other Villains."

DEEPENING THE CHANNEL

So far as the Bristol Area is concerned, the big question to be settled with regard to deepening the Delaware River channel isn't the kind of damage which may result, or how serious this might be, but who is going to pay for it.

Whose job is it going to be to prevent as much damage as possible, and make good what can't be prevented? That's the main issue.

This point has been brought out at a number of the conferences which have been held on the issue. Just the same, the heated debates continue on such technical questions as whether salt ocean water will be brought this far upstream, whether buildings on the riverbanks will be undermined, whether the water supply of the region will be affected.

These are matters for the experts to pass upon, and probably they won't agree much better than the laymen. On many of them, the best answer may eventually turn out to be, "it all depends."

But what the average citizen can easily understand, and the thing which is most important in the long run, is the need for a clean-cut agreement with some responsible agency, to the effect that whatever is needed to prevent damage will be furnished and that whatever damage is unavoidable will be made good.

Such an agency might be, for example, the U. S. Government, properly authorized and financed by Congress. Or there has been discussion that the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania ought to underwrite the possible damage.

But whoever it is, either of these two or some other, this community itself cannot possibly undertake such

TAX PLANNED, REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

New Tax Will Repeal Taxes On Real Estate Now In Effect in Some Dis'ts

QUERY ON WHO PAYS

By Ed Hauck

HARRISBURG, Jan. 26 — (INS) — A one per cent tax on real estate transactions goes into effect in Pennsylvania February 1st but as of today no one knows who will pay it.

There is as much dispute on approximately how much the levy will yield.

The only thing certain about the law is that county recorders of deeds will be fined if there isn't a collection on each approved sale of real estate.

The levy is one of a package of taxes tossed together hurriedly in the dying days of the 1951 session of the General Assembly as a substitute for the repudiated income tax offered by Gov. John S. Fine to balance the budget.

State officials can give no definite answer as to whether the buyer or the seller of a property will have to cough up the tax.

"It's no concern of ours who pays it," said a spokesman for the

Mrs. Chas. D. Grim Dies; To Be Buried in Bristol

Mrs. Amy V. Grim, widow of Charles D. Grim, and a former resident of Bristol, died yesterday at Elizabethtown in her 75th year.

The Grim family made its residence here a number of years ago, and at that time Mr. Grim conducted a musical instrument business at Pond and Washington streets, and also directed orchestras.

Surviving Mrs. Grim are two daughters Mrs. John H. Stein, of Reading, and Miss Katherine M. Grim, Long Beach, Cal.; a grandson, Jay Stein, of Reading; and several nieces and nephews.

The Rev. Edward G. Yeomans, pastor of Bristol Presbyterian Church, will conduct the service at two p. m. Tuesday at the funeral home of John C. Black, 314 Cedar street. Burial will be in Bristol Cemetery. Friends may call Monday from 188.6 to 189.1, a record high.

HEALTH DEPT TO WAGE CAMPAIGN FOR SANITATION

State Dep't is Watching Sanitary Facilities of The Housing Developments

PROGRESS IS MADE

Order Stiffer Inspection of Private Sewage Disposal Systems

By Ed Hauck

HARRISBURG, Jan. 26 — (INS) — The State Health Department today is waging a successful campaign against inadequate sanitary facilities in housing developments throughout Pennsylvania.

"We made quite definite progress in this tremendous job," said Secretary Russell E. Teague. "However, it's not insurmountable and we're proceeding along satisfactorily."

Teague ordered a crackdown last spring, demanding stiffer inspection of private sewage disposal systems in homes purchased through the Veterans Administration and the Federal Housing Administration.

Teague explained that a section in the Bureau of Environmental Hygiene had been set up especially to make routine checks.

Complaints have dropped off because the Department now inspects the sanitary facilities and certifies the property before it can be sold.

Contractors have been cooperating with the 140 field men to straighten out the problem, Teague said.

"We had numerous complaints from war veterans," Teague said.

PHILCO WORKERS OUT; MAY RETURN MONDAY

Employees Called Out To Discuss Wage Increase Recently Asked

MAY RETURN MONDAY

CROYDON, Jan. 26 — Production stopped yesterday at the Philco plant here, when 5,000 workers halted production at the Philadelphia plant as well as here.

Officials of the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (CIO) said employees were called out to discuss a 6½ cent an hour wage increase recently asked by the union. The company said the walkout violated a union contract.

The plants normally are closed on Saturdays.

The contract between the union and company expires May 1, but a union spokesman said the agreement permits reopening of the wage issue at any time.

AT THE GRAND

As different and exciting, as gay, colorful and romantic as the famed French capital itself is M-G-M's "American in Paris" coming to the Grand Theatre next week. Starring Gene Kelly, introducing Leslie Caron, lovely danseuse of the Cahnps Elysees ballet, and featuring Oscar Levant, Georges Guetary and Nina Foch, this Technicolor love story is set to the favorite songs of George Gershwin and the enchanting tempo of Paris.

Vincente Minnelli, who directed "Meet Me in St. Louis," which proved an earlier smash hit in unique musicals, directed the new offering. Arthur Freed ("Annie Get Your Gun," "On the Town," "Easter Parade") is the producer, with the story and screen play the work of Alan Jay Lerner, author of the Broadway stage success, "Brigadoon."

Gene Kelly, who worked with Producer Freed in making "On the Town" an acclaimed innovation in film musicals, teamed with Freed and Minnelli during a year of painstaking preparations designed to give "An American in Paris" a formula completely new and fresh to motion pictures. It is his first film appearance since "Summer Stock."

FIRES IN AREA CAUSE $30,000 LOSS; DWELLING GUTTED; WAREHOUSES AND CONTENTS LOST; TOOL SHED DESTROYED

Explosion of Oil Heater, Ognition of Bottled Gas Results in Great Damage at John Komarnicki's Home, Oxford Valley-Bristol Road — One Warehouse Destroyed and Another Guttred on M. A. Shull Property, With Building Materials Also Prey to Flames — Kaiser Metal Products Tool Shed Razed.

Fires in this area yesterday gutted one dwelling and destroyed the contents; destroyed a large warehouse with building material contents, and swept through a second, smaller warehouse, destroying its contents; also razed a tool shed.

The dwelling is located on Oxford Valley-Bristol road; the two warehouses are on Mill Creek road, Falls township; and the tool shed in Bristol borough.

The total loss is approximated in excess of $30,000. Part of this is covered by insurance.

Fire, following the explosion of an oil heater and then what is believed to have been the ignition of bottled gas, gutted the 2½ story stone house on the Oxford Valley-Bristol road, causing a loss estimated at $10,000, yesterday afternoon.

The dwelling, along with its contents, was completely ruined with the exception of the stone walls and a portion of the shingle roof. There was very little insurance, according to the owner.

The property is owned by John Komarnicki who occupied it with his family. Firemen were able to save most of the wood shingle roof. The spread of the flames to a nearby barn was also prevented.

One dog and two cats were victims of the blaze, Mrs. Komarnicki ran from the house to the barn summoning her husband, but upon reaching the barn was so nervous she could not tell her husband of the blaze. Mr. Komarnicki, at the time, was in the stable talking with a neighbor.

Mrs. Komarnicki was taken to the home of Mrs. Katherine Dixon, a neighbor.

In one corner of the building there was an oil heater and with its explosion and the burning of the floor of this room it dropped into a basement. It is believed that a bottled gas container broke loose from its fastenings and the gas ignited.

Firemen were called but found the flames well advanced.

The property on which the warehouses were ablaze is that of Maurice A. Shull, Mill Creek road, Falls twp., contractor and builder. It was about 10:45 last night that a passer-by stopped at the Shull home to inform that he had seen flames in the one warehouse, a converted frame barn, four stories high.

Fire companies from several surrounding communities were summoned, and fought the blaze with water from the canal nearby. The flames quickly licked through the four-story building, burning the contents of molding, window frames, doors, tarpaulins, etc.; this spread to the other two-story frame structure which had been converted into a warehouse also. This was gutted.

Firemen played water on the dwelling, which was located only about 20 feet from the burning structures.

The two structures which were afire are covered by insurance, although the contents are not, states the Shull family. Loss is estimated at $20,000. Firemen remained at the scene until two o'clock this morning. Cause of the blaze is not determined.

Police re-routed traffic over Bristol Pike.

The tool shed which was destroyed by fire was located on the property of Kaiser Metal Products Co., at plant No. 1.

Bristol firemen received two false alarms yesterday. One at 4:45 p. m. was at the rear of what was once known as the Hof Braun, Bristol Pike; the other at 11:15 p. m., to 343 Railroad avenue.

Dr. Bisbee Tells of An Ancient "Jersey" Edition

NEWTOWN, Jan. 26 — Dr. Henry H. Bisbee, Burlington, N. J., addressed members of Newtown Exchange Club at their dinner meeting, Thursday evening, in the Temperance House.

Dr. Bisbee spoke relative to the volume published in 1776 in England, the title of which is "Concessions and Agreements, Proprietors, Freeholders and Inhabitants of the Province of West New Jersey in America." This volume is identical in many instances to the Bill of Rights, published almost 100 years later. It is on display in Burlington, and Burlington borough council has had copies made with the intention of having each pupil in the public schools of New Jersey have a copy.

Burlington is this year celebrating its 275th anniversary and the Exchangees were invited to visit the town.

Dr. Bisbee was presented by Stanford Roberts, chairman of the program committee for this month.

Norman Vogel, of Bristol Exchange Club, was also presented.

The short business meeting was conducted by F. Stewart Whitman.

BLESSINGS OF GODLINESS

The Christian religion does not operate with fear and terror, with threats and punishments. God's aim is not to frighten and to terrify men into being Christians. While God shows us the results of sin, He draws us to Himself by His promise of grace and every blessing. To them that believe on the Son Jesus Christ, who redeemed the world, God gives the power to become the sons of God. As sons, they are His heirs and enjoy His blessing. This is experienced already in this life, for "Godliness has the promise of the life that now is," but most important is in the life to come where each believer will wear the eternal crown of God's blessing.

But seek first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness. The good things of this earth will then be added as an extra gift as the heavenly Father finds best.

within two months. Gerstell said, and following several practice warnings, work will get underway on a statewide system. The preliminary job is expected to cost "several hundred thousand dollars," Gerstell said.

The Council also approved a statewide control center in the State Capitol Building. Gerstell said the center could rally forces from all points within the state through all type of communication facilities.

Col. Edwin F. Feather, assistant commander of Valley Forge Military Academy, was appointed director of a training program scheduled to get underway immediately. Feather will appoint three assistants, one each in the Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and central areas. Salaries of the training officers have not been set.

The program will be concentrated on training wardens and rescue teams.

Gerstell said facilities of the federal civil defense training school at Ogontz in Montgomery county will be used and additional schools will be established in other parts of the state.

Training equipment will include 12 completely equipped rescue trucks for teaching demonstrations. Each truck will be purchased from the federal government for $13,500 each, the cost to be split by the state and federal governments. The vehicles will be garaged at state police barracks throughout the state and used in case of natural disasters.

The Council approved issuance of 50,000 special "civil defense tags" for identification of essential vehicles. The tags will be made in state institutions at a cost of five cents each.

Appointed as western area director for civil defense was Ross I. Webb, of Erie, with headquarters in Pittsburgh. Webb, long associated with civil defense in Erie, will have charge of a 20-county area.

J. Willard Lord, of Philadelphia, is eastern area director at Philadelphia and the central-state region will be handled from the state office.

Gerstell said distribution will start soon of 150,000 copies of a manual entitled "Civil Defense for Schools" to all public and parochial schools. The booklet has been approved by the Department of Public Instruction.

FILE PETITION IN P. U. C. DECISION

New Hope and Hatboro
Residents Protest Reading
Halting Service

WILL GO TO COURT

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 26—(INS)—A commuters committee of several hundred residents of Hatboro and New Hope yesterday filed a petition with the State Superior Court asking the right to appeal a Public Utility Commission order which would discontinue Reading Railroad passenger train service between the towns and substitute bus service instead.

The petition was signed by committee president Ford R. Jennings and was filed by attorney Lois G. Forer. The PUC handed down its order Dec. 27 last.

The committee charged the PUC order was "unreasonable and erroneous" in several particulars. It said the company had used "hypothetical" figures to show revenue and expenses. It charged the company failed to show bus service would not inconvenience residents in the two communities.

of illusion was held in place by a crown of seed pearls. White kid slippers completed her costume. She carried a cascade of white roses with an orchid center.

Her sister, Miss Dolores Stanton, as maid of honor, was attired in yellow taffeta, the bodice of which had a round neckline with a bertha of the same material. The full skirt was worn with a hoop. A ruffled taffeta headpiece held the shoulder-length veil in place. Three bridesmaids wore gowns made on the same lines as that of the maid of honor. Mrs. Joseph Dillon, sister of the bridegroom, wore lavender; Miss Elizabeth Stanton, sister of the bride, wore rose; and Miss Patricia Speakman, poude blue. They wore small sweetheart bonnets of taffeta in matching colors. The four attendants wore white slippers, and carried nosegays of roses with matching taffeta holders. Miss Stanton carried lavender roses; Mrs. Dillon, yellow; Miss Elizabeth Stanton blue and Miss Speakman pink.

Little "Judy" Adams, Philadelphia, niece of the bridegroom, was the flower girl. She wore a shepherdess gown of gold taffeta, with short puffed sleeves. The skirt had several pick-ups in the front to reveal rows of lace. She wore a heart-shaped bonnet of matching taffeta. White slippers completed her attire and she carried a nosegay of red roses with matching holder. The former Miss Stanton presented her attendants with gold bracelets.

A breakfast was served to members of the bridal party at the Stanton home. A reception was scheduled in the Bristol Terrace community hall for 150 guests.

For the ceremony, Mrs. Stanton, mother of the bride wore black crepe with aqua trim and black accessories. Mrs. Benneman, the bridegroom's mother, chose a navy blue print with navy blue accessories. Both wore red rose corsages. For her honeymoon trip to New York, N. Y., Mrs. Benneman has selected maroon gabardine suit, maroon slippers, hat, bag; white gloves and a beige coat. She will wear the orchid from her bridal bouquet. The newly-weds will reside in a apartment at Wood and Dorrance streets. The bride is an employee of the Atlantic Tea Packing Co. and Mr. Benneman is employed by Barker & Williamson.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Biased Advice Is Bad

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.

Most persons will agree that if there is any Administration agency which should be free from politics and partisanship, it is the so-called President's Council of Economic Advisers. This group, headed by Mr. Leon Keyserling, is supposed to keep the President informed as to the economic situation and make recommendations upon which he can rely as sound.

In other words, its function is to give him facts, analysis and interpretation upon which to base his economic policies. Clearly, if these are biased the advice of the council becomes worthless. It is unpleasant to state but it is certainly the truth that a good many informed persons, including some really eminent economists and industrialists think it is exactly that. They have increasingly felt that way since the distinguished Dr. Edwin G. Nourse retired as its head because he could not follow Administration lines. At that time there was opposition to the appointment as his successor of Mr. Keyserling, who had been completely identified with the New Deal and Fair Deal policies from the time of their inception in 1933.

He then was legislative clerk to the late Senator Robert Wagner, author of the Wagner Labor Act and a hero of the labor union bosses. Later he held a succession of New Deal jobs, mostly with the Housing Authority, finally becoming vice chairman of the economic council, and with Dr. Nourse's departure, chairman. The impression prevails in various quarters that what Mr. Keyserling really does is fit the economic facts into the New Deal and Fair Deal theories rather than interpret them realistically and without prejudice. Perhaps this is natural and not intentional. For nearly twenty years he has been completely steeped in the New Deal-Fair Deal economic policies, in the soundness of which undoubtedly he sincerely believes. Most of the best qualified economists in the country regard these policies as inherently unsound. It is therefore inevitable that many of them should regard Mr. Keyserling as a not particularly sound adviser for the President.

A vigorous, voluble man, a great writer of letters and maker of speeches, Mr. Keyserling appears never to cherish the slightest doubt of the correctness of his own opinions and always expresses them forcefully. Since the present crisis arose, several things have contributed to the belief that his economic views are inseparable from the spending policies with which for so many years he has been saturated. For one thing, he is on record as suggesting that nondefense expenditures can increase with defense expenditures. Every now and then he says something about economy, but if nondefense expenditures are not to be curtailed, it is hard to understand the Keyserling idea. On this question he does not see eye to eye with Senator Byrd or Mr. Hoover and certainly not with the National Association of Manufacturers or any other agency which has called for nondefense reductions from $4,000,000,000 to $9,000,000,000.

For another thing he is not entirely in accord with Mr. Baruch as to inflation controls, which include a really effective ceiling on wages as well as on profits. Actually, Mr. Keyserling has lent support to wage increases followed by price increases which have promoted inflation. A week or so ago on a television program he expressed his view that the steelworkers should have an increase and the steel companies, perhaps, a small increase in prices. Asked if this would not promote inflation, he was vague and evasive. This expression of views from a Government official was sharply criticized as being highly improper while negotiations were going on and the Government trying to force an agreement. Also it has been reported in print that War Mobilizer Wilson regards Mr. Keyserling's economic advice as definitely unhelpful. The Keyserling theme song is that production takes care of practically everything. If that rises, then the national income rises, and all is well.

But even more offensive to the hard-headed men in the defense effort than his slightly weird economic theories is the suspicion that the council can never be free from Administration politics and, therefore, can never give the President disinterested and sound advice. This suspicion was strengthened by the recent appointment of Mr. Bertram M. Gross, executive secretary of the Council of Economic Advisers, to the staff of the Democratic National Committee. The announcement was made by Chairman McKinney, approved by President Truman and reportedly recommended by Mr. Keyserling. The function of Mr. Gross will be to assemble and interpret the financial facts of the nation so that the noble Democratic candidates and propagandists in the coming campaign can answer the wicked Republican charge of reckless spending, unrestrained waste, unmanageable debt and deficit. It is asserted that Mr. Gross is just the man to do this, that this is really what he does anyhow, that the only difference now is that he will put in all of his time at it and be paid by the Democratic committee. Considering all these things, it seems a strain on anyone's credulity to regard the advice of the economic council as wholly unbiased. And if it isn't that, what is it worth?

Morrisville Businessmen
To Develop Parking Lot

MORRISVILLE, Jan. 26—Climaxing weeks of discussion, Morrisville businessmen have agreed to give $50,000 toward the development of a proposed mid-town parking project. An additional $50,000 will be needed to purchase property and for development of the land.

Irving B. Levinson, president of the Morrisville Businessmen's Association, and T. Sidney Calwallader, attorney for a group of merchants, voiced the opinion that the money would be raised soon.

Besides planning to buy the old Presbyterian Church property facing Union street for $67,500, the group also won the release consent from Paul Sullivan, owner of a parcel next to the church. The two properties would give the project a 500-foot frontage. Sullivan was praised by Levinson for his civic-mindedness.

In an endeavor to extend Washington street, now dead-ended at Bridge street, to provide access from Bridge street into the parking lot, the group is seeking the cooperation of J. Headley Howell, hardware merchant, who owns dwellings on Bridge street, facing the end of Washington street.

The project is slated to provide space for 300 to 350 cars. Levinson announced that contacts would be made with business leaders Monday for investments in the project.

HIGH SCHOOL TEAM STEPS BACK INTO LEAGUE BATTLE

FALLSINGTON, Jan. 26—Bristol High stepped back into the Lower Bucks County League picture last night as it came through with a 66-50 win over Pennsbury High on the latter's court. The Warriors are now but one game behind the league-leading Morrisville High team.

In handing the Falcons their fifth straight loss, Coach Ben Watson's team met with more than it bargained for as Ray Bray was having one of his scoring nights. Bray's accurate shooting and ability to get the ball kept Pennsbury in the game for three quarters and it wasn't until the final session that Bristol managed to pull away for a real comfortable margin.

Score at the end of the first quarter was 14-12 with Bristol ahead and Bray scoring one-half of the Pennsbury points. Bristol was behind at the half-time buzzer, 25-26, with Bray accounting for 8 points in this quarter and Scanlon, 5. Bristol during this half was dividing its scoring.

In the third quarter, Andy Accardi began to find the range of the basket and sunk in six field goals to help the Warriors to a 46-38 lead. During this session, Walt Holden was guarding Bray closely and held him to a single field goal. Bristol also outscored their opponent in the last quarter.

Accardi ended up with 26 Bristol points on 12 and 2 while Bray was close behind with 24 points. Bob Stroble accounted for 18 Bristol counters.

Bristol's record for the season is eight wins and four losses.

BENSALEM TOPS HATFIELD IN A ONE-SIDED GAME

HATFIELD, Jan. 26 — Bensalem Township High scored 31 field goals as it whipped Hatfield High, 70-42, in a one-sided game here last night.

With the exception of Padbury, every player in the Bensalem line-up had at least one field goal and during the entire final quarter and most of the third period, Coach Johnny Messinger used his second-string team.

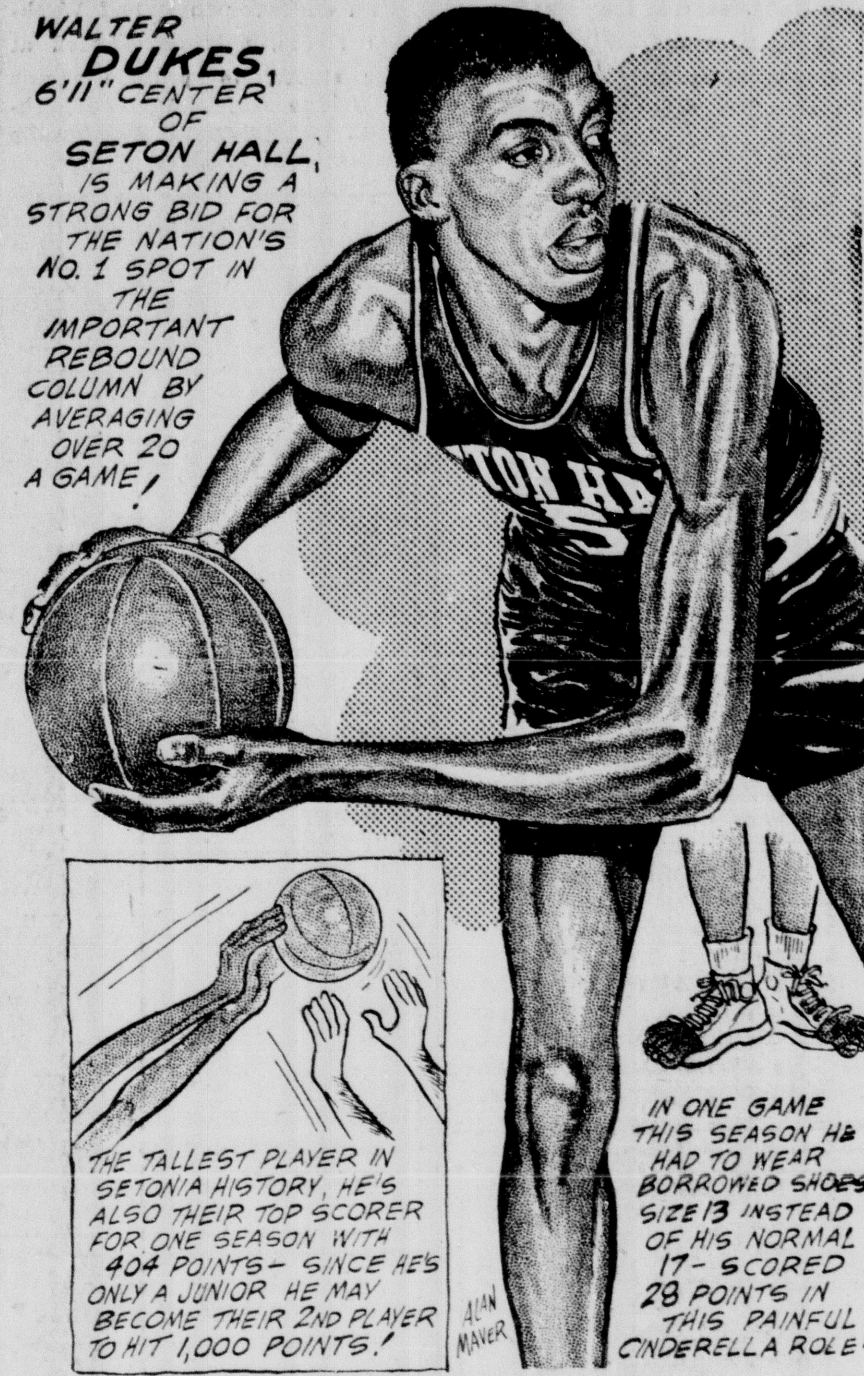

Bensalem had the lead from the start and at the end of the first half were 18 points ahead, 35-17.

Bob Whitfield was high man for the winners with 7 double-deckers and three fouls for 17 points. Russ Struble tabbed 12 points. For Hatfield, Denny Moore was tops with 17 points on eight fielders and one foul.

The triumph evened Bensalem's record for the season with four and four.

The Bensalem Junior High was also victorious, beating Hatfield Junior High, 39-28. A strong sec-

SUBURBAN NEWS

FALLSINGTON Mr. and Mrs. Albert T. McCabe spent two days last week visiting friends and relatives in Gilberton. Recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. William Lobecker were Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Buck and Peter Buck. Flemington, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. George Welhow and children, Trevese Heights; and Mrs. Amelia Chilton and Mrs. Lillian Battersby, and Mr. and Mrs. George Moll, Philadelphia.

NEWPORTVILLE Arthur Yohe cut his hand on a tin can while working in his yard. He was treated at the Harriman Hospital, Bristol.

CROYDON The Ladies Auxiliary of the Croydon Fire Company held a "cootie" party on Tuesday evening in the fire station. Twelve tables were filled. High scorers were: Mrs. Thomas Muchlet, first; and Mrs. M. Arnold, second. A door prize of an electric toaster was given. Prizes were donated by local merchants and members of the auxiliary.

Tells of Volunteer Project in Germany at the home were given emphasis by means of snap-shots which she passed through the audience. Of particular interest was the "light" and delight on the face of a small girl as she opened her CARE package. In spite of the fact that the contents were butter, powdered milk and cheese, the recipient's joy knew no bounds, according to Miss Rouner, the latter being disappointed that no chocolate bars, the thrill of thrills to the needy children abroad, were included.

NEWTOWN Miss Jeannie Campbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Campbell, is ill with asthma at her home, Washington Crossing road. Mr. and Mrs. Buck Randall, Philadelphia, were guests on Saturday of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Killey. Mrs. Stephen M. Vandegrift entertained at dinner, on Saturday, Mrs. Hannah Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Morgan, Doylestown, and Miss Dolores Sedia, of Newtown.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles Holden, Frankford, were week-end guests of J. Harry Warner. Mrs. Fred Waring, New Hope, was a visitor of Mrs. Elizabeth Edwards, on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward G. Olson and daughters Gail and Marilyn, of Easton, are house guests of Mrs. Olson's mother, Mrs. Amos C. Bond. Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Hunsicker have received word from their son, Pfc. William Hunsicker, who has been stationed at Fort Bragg, N. C., for some time, that he has been sent to Camp Erwin, Cal., for five weeks' training with the tank battalion.

Mr. and Mrs. James Frank, Newtown, R. D., have left for an extended trip to South America, particularly visiting Peru. Mrs. C. H. Fischer, of Sydney, New South Wales, is the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. David Taylor, Newtown, R. D.

Mrs. Amos C. Bond, Mrs. Albert Mammel, Mrs. Clarence Savidge, Mrs. William S. Kenderdine were Thursday luncheon guests of Mrs. Joseph Hollowell, Ivyland.

Samuel S. Gray, Jr., attended the Pennsylvania mid-year bar convention in Harrisburg, Jan. 24-25. Raymond Taylor, of Welsbret Farm, spent Thursday and Friday in Springfield, Mass., attending the Eastern States Farmers Cooperative, of which he is a director.

Mrs. J. C. Usilton on Tuesday entertained at luncheon and bridge: Mrs. David L. Watson, Mrs. Stephen Miller, Mrs. William Morlok, Jr., Mrs. B. Willis Starr, Mrs. Frank B. Fabian, Mrs. Albert Mammel, Mrs. Roland Porter.

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS Mrs. Adolph Reif, Cornwells Heights, and Mrs. Ellen Harry, Wildwood, N. J., left Wednesday afternoon on a motor trip to Miami, Fla. They will stop at Jacksonville to visit Mrs. Harry's son, Lewis Harry, who is stationed there with the U. S. Navy.

MRS. VIOLA W. TEGGE PARKLAND, Jan. 26 — Stricken ill while visiting here, Mrs. Viola W. Tegge, 62, Baltimore, Md., died this morning in Jeannes Hospital, Philadelphia. Mrs. Tegge had been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Charles Johnson, Avenue F. Another daughter, Mrs. William J. Blakely, Baltimore, also survives; as do several grandchildren. Mrs. Tegge was the daughter of the late George and Harriet Allen Weaver. Service will be conducted at the Wm. Dunn funeral home, Langhorne, at 11 a. m. Wednesday. The Rev. Roger Hillis, of Parkland Community Chapel, will officiate. Burial will be made in St. Luke's Reformed Cemetery, Trappe. Friends may call Tuesday evening.

Deepening The Channel

Continued from Page One heavy expenditures as $400,000 for a revetment past Bristol, or the impossible load of promising to repay such damages as may be caused by the project. Bristol Borough didn't ask for the deeper channel, and neither did Bristol Township. Any benefits they may receive are negligible by comparison with the great costs being saddled upon Lower Bucks County by the huge population growth now under way.

The deeper channel will help primarily two interests —first, the Fairless Steel plant, which would then be able to bring in its ore in ocean-going vessels; and, second, Uncle Sam, who urgently needs additional steel to meet the world crisis.

It would be completely unfair to ask this region, already facing big new financial burdens which are far outstripping all tax revenues thus far in sight, to underwrite the damages which may be caused by a project intended to benefit quite different groups.

The people of the Bristol community are entitled to have firm assurance that they will not be expected to finance big and costly programs of a protective nature which are clearly part of the channel project itself, nor be expected to absorb the costs of whatever damage may result.

those on human rights, communications, status of women, narcotic drugs, etc.—were discussed briefly. Miss Rouner impressed on the group how the organizations within the U. N. are working to build a better world community.

The address of the day was prefaced with "international" music—the piano solo being as follows: "Autumn" (Chaminade) from France; Brahms' Waltz No. 8 from Germany; and "Country Gardens" from England. The musician was Mrs. David M. Sheerer, Jr.

Mrs. Robert D. Brooks, club president, conducted a business meeting. She called upon Mrs. Harry T. Neher to lead in a prayer for peace; and Mrs. Frank S. Weik for minutes of the last meeting. Mrs. Sheerer gave a resume of the address of the main speaker at the Bucks Co. Federation of Women's Clubs mid-winter conference.

Mrs. Charles T. Simpson, chairman of legislation, urged immediate action on the part of members —she asking that they write their congressmen and the president asking immediate action on the Hoover Commission reforms and better defense production to aid the fighting men of the U. S. This suggestion was seconded by Mrs. Elwood P. Goslin, chairman of public affairs committee.

Tea was poured by Mrs. Richard T. Myers and Mrs. John A. Moyer.

Tax Planned, Real Estate Transactions

Continued from Page One Justice Department, "just so its paid." He said agreements between the two parties could be made for payment of the levy. It could either be split between the two or paid by one.

The Budget Department reported: "We can't answer the question, because we don't know."

The Revenue Department which will be the chief collector is going to put out a set of regulations governing the "technicalities" of the act. However, there was no simple clarification from this source.

"In view of all these complications and disagreements," said the president of the Pennsylvania Realtors Association, "the new realty transfer tax most certainly will be very complex to administer."

The realty group was unsuccessful in lobbying against the bill. It also is at odds with the State Budget Office over how much the tax will produce.

The latest estimate from the Budget Office is $20,000,000. This is a million dollars higher than the original estimate.

The realty Association claims the yield will be closer to $30 million. Real estate transfers in Pennsylvania exceeded $2 billion last year, according to President Gladstone Carmalt. He said deducting 20 per cent for exemptions allowed under the law, the tax would pour at least $30 million into the state cash register.

This type levy is one entirely new in the commonwealth's tax structure. Some real estate is taxed now under provisions of the "tax anything law" but is not statewide in scope.

Under the existing law, political sub-divisions can levy on anything not taxed by the state and some regions placed an impost on real estate.

However, the new tax will repeal taxes on real estate now in effect. The real estate lobby claims there will be increased local taxation where the property tax is lifted to make up for the political subdivision's loss of revenue.

Predicts Election of Republican President

Bringing his point home to the audience, he explained that Mifflin county's share of the cost of operating the federal government for 1952 will be 24 million dollars —about four million dollars more than the assessed valuation of the county real estate and personal property.

The former governor also said President Truman's estimate of a national debt of 275 billion dollars by June, 1953, means a debt of $1700 for every man, woman and child in the country.

Martin called a halt to high spending and taxes. He said: "Under no circumstances short of total war will I vote for any tax increase beyond the present level—and I think taxes are too high now."

The Senator said the budget must be balanced not by higher taxes but by chopping spending to meet income and eliminating waste. Martin also assailed the President for "failure to take prompt and drastic action against the crooks in public office."

He cited former President Coolidge's treatment of the "teapot dome" scandal as "a model for Mr. Truman."

He declared: "In this time of national peril the American people cry out for leadership in which they can place full trust and confidence."

Martin warned that "our greatest danger is not from communist aggression . . . it is within our own midst."

Heirs To Receive Sums Ranging from $1,000 Down to $200

THE LOVETT ESTATE

Late Tullytown Woman Names Her Son As The Heir of Property

DOYLESTOWN, Jan. 26 — Elizabeth Bottoms, Bensalem twp., who left a $4,000 personal and $4,000 real estate holdings in Bensalem twp., created seven personal bequests in her will which was dated Jan. 10, 1951.

Heirs are Rosa L. Bouché, $1,000; Richard Powell and Edward Stanfield, 4610 Vista street, Mayfair, who was named executrix, each $500; Marice C. Hitchens, $300; Betty Jane McAleese, $500; and Lillian Haig, $500. Margaret D. Powell was given $200 and the testatrix died Nov. 13, 1951.

Three children, Viola Dean Alt-house, 415 South Main street, Telford, who was named the executrix; Mary Jane and Janice Claire Alt-house, were named the residuary beneficiaries of the $2,000 personal and $6,000 real estate holdings of their mother, Viola D. Alt-house. The testatrix died Nov. 20, 1951, and the will was dated Feb. 10, 1939.

Elizabeth M. Lovett, Tullytown, who left a personal estate of $1,100 and real estate valued at $750, named her son, Augustus M. Grose, Pond street, Tullytown, the heir. The will was written May 9, 1923, and in it her husband, Amos H. Lovett, was given a life right. In a codicil, added later, the son was named the sole heir. The testatrix died Nov. 23, 1951, and the son was also named executor.

Letters of administration in the estate of Edwin E. Clark, Newtown twp., were granted to Marie A. Clark, Newtown, amounting to a personal estate of $2,000. The widow and a daughter, Barbara M. Clark, are the heirs of the decedent who died Nov. 24, 1951.

A Sellersville Justice of the Peace, W. Lee Wilhelm, was granted the letters of administration in the estate of John Gordon Ferguson, of Sellersville, who died Nov. 22, 1951, and left a personal estate of $1,000. The decedent had no known heirs.

In the estate of Guy H. Culp, Falls twp., letters of administration were granted to Estelle Culp, Langhorne, R. D. 2, amounting to a $3,400 personal estate. A son, Frederick, 2204 South 56th street, Philadelphia, is also an heir. The decedent died Nov. 2, 1951.

Ethel C. Morgan, 31 West Philadelphia ave., Morrisville, a daughter was granted the letters of administration in the estate of Jacob Clay, Tullytown, who died Feb. 28, 1951, and left a personal estate of $350. There are 11 grandchildren as additional heirs.

Letters of administration in the estate of Elmer A. Mills, Jr., Bristol, were granted to Elmer A. Mills, Second and Leedom streets, Bristol, R. D. 2, amounting to a $350 personal estate. The father and son were both deceased.

Brown-Shields Wedding Occurs in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 26 — The wedding of Mr. Joseph Shields, son of Mrs. Margaret Taylor, Eddington, and Miss Barbara Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Brown, Philadelphia, took place today at 11 o'clock nuptial mass in St. Ambrose's R. C. Church, Roosevelt boulevard.

Breakfast was served after the wedding; and a reception for approximately 800 is scheduled for this afternoon and evening. The couple will spend a honeymoon in New York and the New England states. They will reside in Woodbury, N. J.

High School Graduates May Now Get Army Wings

S/Sgt. James M. Major, of the Bristol Recruiting Office, announced today that men who are high school graduates may now qualify or pilots training in the United States Army provided that he is physically qualified. This means they have a chance to win the coveted wings of the Army pilot, and that is not all, they will also have commissions in the U. S. Army Reserve Corps.

Those interested are asked to contact S/Sgt. Major at the Bristol Recruiting Office, located at Pond and Mulberry Sts. in the Municipal Building, or call Bristol 811.

TO INSTALL NEW TYPE RAID WARNING SYSTEM

Work on Such a State System to Start Within a Few Days

ACCELERATE PROJECT

HARRISBURG, Jan. 26 — (INS) — Acceleration of Pennsylvania's civil defense program was heralded today by an announcement that installation of a new type air raid warning system will start within a few days.

The initial installation will start in south-central counties and later fan out to embrace all of the state, according to State Civil Defense Director Richard Gerstell.

He described it as a "bell and light instantaneous warning" which can reduce to mere seconds the transmission of alerts from key centers.

The radio and chain telephone system now in use takes from 10 to 15 minutes to accomplish its purpose, he added.

The project was one of a number approved yesterday by the State Council of Civil Defense. The cost will be paid from the $4,000,000 appropriation approved by the 1951 General Assembly and federal grants-in-aid.

"Guinea pig" area for the new warning method, according to Gerstell, will be Dauphin, Cumberland, Perry, Adams and York counties. Hooked into the network will be York, Harrisburg, Carlisle, Chambersburg, New Bloomfield, Duncannon, Lykens, Hanover and Gettysburg.

The project will be completed

Industrial Engineer To Speak to Horse Co.

NEWTOWN, Jan. 26 — Irvin Wolf, chief industrial engineer of Bethlehem Steel Co., will be guest speaker at the 134th annual meeting and banquet of the local horse company, Monday evening, at the Temperance House.

This gathering is one of the ancient traditions of the former county seat of Bucks. Although the functions for which the company was founded on February 27, 1819, at the Bird-in-Hand are no longer able to be carried out, the organization continues its charter under the original style and title of "The Newtown Reliance Company for Detecting and Apprehending of Horse Thieves and Other Villains."

DEEPENING THE CHANNEL

So far as the Bristol Area is concerned, the big question to be settled with regard to deepening the Delaware River channel isn't the kind of damage which may result, or how serious this might be, but who is going to pay for it.

Whose job is it going to be to prevent as much damage as possible, and make good what can't be prevented? That's the main issue.

This point has been brought out at a number of the conferences which have been held on the issue. Just the same, the heated debates continue on such technical questions as whether salt ocean water will be brought this far upstream, whether buildings on the riverbanks will be undermined, whether the water supply of the region will be affected.

These are matters for the experts to pass upon, and probably they won't agree much better than the laymen. On many of them, the best answer may eventually turn out to be, "it all depends."

But what the average citizen can easily understand, and the thing which is most important in the long run, is the need for a clean-cut agreement with some responsible agency, to the effect that whatever is needed to prevent damage will be furnished and that whatever damage is unavoidable will be made good.

Such an agency might be, for example, the U. S. Government, properly authorized and financed by Congress. Or there has been discussion that the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania ought to underwrite the possible damage.

But whoever it is, either of these two or some other, this community itself cannot possibly undertake such

TAX PLANNED, REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

New Tax Will Repeal Taxes On Real Estate Now In Effect in Some Dis'ts

QUERY ON WHO PAYS

By Ed Hauck

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

HARRISBURG, Jan. 26 — (INS) —

A one per cent tax on real estate transactions goes into effect in Pennsylvania February 1st but as of today no one knows who will pay it.

There is as much dispute on approximately how much the levy will yield.

The only thing certain about the law is that county recorders of deeds will be fined if there isn't a collection on each approved sale of real estate.

The levy is one of a package of taxes tossed together hurriedly in the dying days of the 1951 session of the General Assembly as a substitute for the repudiated income tax offered by Gov. John S. Fine to balance the budget.

State officials can give no definite answer as to whether the buyer or the seller of a property will have to cough up the tax.

"It's no concern of ours who pays it," said a spokesman for the

Mrs. Chas. D. Grim Dies; To Be Buried in Bristol

Mrs. Amy V. Grim, widow of Charles D. Grim, and a former resident of Bristol, died yesterday at Elizabethtown in her 75th year.

The Grim family made its residence here a number of years ago, and at that time Mr. Grim conducted a musical instrument business at Pond and Washington streets, and also directed orchestras.

Surviving Mrs. Grim are two daughters Mrs. John H. Stein, of Reading, and Miss Katherine M. Grim, Long Beach, Cal.; a grandson, Jay Stein, of Reading; and several nieces and nephews.

The Rev. Edward G. Yeomans, pastor of Bristol Presbyterian Church, will conduct the service at two p. m. Tuesday at the funeral home of John C. Black, 314 Cedar street. Burial will be in Bristol Cemetery. Friends may call Monday evening.

State Dep't is Watching Sanitary Facilities of The Housing Developments

PROGRESS IS MADE

Order Stiffer Inspection of Private Sewage Disposal Systems

By Ed Hauck

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

HARRISBURG, Jan. 26 — (INS) —

The State Health Department today is waging a successful campaign against inadequate sanitary facilities in housing developments throughout Pennsylvania.

"We made quite definite progress in this tremendous job," said Secretary Russell E. Teague. "However, it's not insurmountable and we're proceeding along satisfactorily."

Teague ordered a crackdown last spring, demanding stiffer inspection of private sewage disposal systems in homes purchased through the Veterans Administration and the Federal Housing Administration.

Teague explained that a section in the Bureau of Environmental Hygiene had been set up especially to make routine checks.

Complaints have dropped off because the Department now inspects the sanitary facilities and certifies the property before it can be sold. Contractors have been cooperating with the 140 field men to straighten out the problem, Teague said.

"We had numerous complaints from war veterans," Teague said.

PHILCO WORKERS OUT; MAY RETURN MONDAY

Employees Called Out To Discuss Wage Increase Recently Asked

MAY RETURN MONDAY

CROYDON, Jan. 26 — Production stopped yesterday at the Philco plant here, when 5,000 workers halted production at the Philadelphia plant as well as here.

Officials of the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (CIO) said employees were called out to discuss a 6½ cent an hour wage increase recently asked by the union. The company said the walkout violated a union contract.

The plants normally are closed on Saturdays.

The contract between the union and company expires May 1, but a union spokesman said the agreement permits reopening of the wage issue at any time.

AT THE GRAND

As different and exciting, as gay, colorful and romantic as the famed French capital itself is M-G-M's "American in Paris" coming to the Grand Theatre next week. Starring Gene Kelly, introducing Leslie Caron, lovely danseuse of the Cahnps Elysees ballet, and featuring Oscar Levant, Georges Guetary and Nina Foch, this Technicolor love story is set to the favorite songs of George Gershwin and the enchanting tempo of Paris.

Vincente Minnelli, who directed "Meet Me in St. Louis," which proved an earlier smash hit in unique musicals, directed the new offering. Arthur Freed ("Annie Get Your Gun," "On the Town," "Easter Parade") is the producer, with the story and screen play the work of Alan Jay Lerner, author of the Broadway stage success, "Brigadoon."

Gene Kelly, who worked with Producer Freed in making "On the Town" an acclaimed innovation in film musicals, teamed with Freed and Minnelli during a year of painstaking preparations designed to give "An American in Paris" a formula completely new and fresh to motion pictures. It is his first film appearance since "Summer Stock."

TELLS OF VOLUNTEER PROJECT IN GERMANY

Miss Elizabeth Rouser Is Speaker International Relations Program

BEFORE TRAVEL CLUB

International relations day for the Travel Club was marked yesterday with a comprehensive outline of the United Nations' divisions, and the duties which devolve upon each; supplemented by word pictures of life in a "Home for Difficult Children" in Germany. The guest speaker was Miss Elizabeth Rouser, a member of the faculty of St. Mary's Hall, Burlington, N. J., who spent six weeks last summer at such a home.

Mrs. Howard R. Focht, chairman of international relations committee of the club, made presentation of Miss Rouser to the club members and their guests on this tea day.

Well-told by Miss Rouser was the story of the volunteer project in a small community in Germany where 100 children, ranging in age from eight to 16 years, are cared for; and many of the phases of life

Check Deodorant With Alleged Alcoholic Content

Boston — Government tax agents today checked samples of a widely-used breath deodorant having a 60 per cent alcoholic content which children have been using to get "high" for as little as 40 cents. Use of the product for drinking first was discovered in Leominster, Mass. When an 11-year-old intoxicated boy caused a disturbance at school, Police immediately banned sale of deodorant to minors and restricted its market to stores with liquor licenses.

Claim Man's Life Was Restored by Heart Massage

Denver — Physicians at Denver's new Veterans Administration hospital revealed today they brought a 28-year-old Greeley man back to life by heart massage after the patient was without heartbeat and blood pressure for five to seven minutes. The patient, Leo H. Meyer, commented "Life, it's wonderful." Surgeons reported they cut Meyer's chest open, bared the heart and started the hour-and-one half massage that brought him back to life.

Wealthy Widow Plunges To Death

Philadelphia — Mrs. Ruth Kohn, wealthy 60-year-old widow, was reported by Philadelphia police today to have plunged to her death from her 11th floor suite in an exclusive Germantown apartment house. Police said Mrs. Kohn had been under treatment in a hospital for some time. She was the widow of the late Morris Kohn, head of a millinery firm. Mrs. Ann Ushert, of Linwood, Pa., a nurse who had been caring for Mrs. Kohn, told police she saw bedroom window open this morning and spied the body on the street below on investigating.

Two Aged Men Hit-Run Victims

Philadelphia — Two 75-year-old men were among six victims of hit-and-run drivers in various sections of Philadelphia early today. Both of the aged men were described in poor condition. One of them, Fred Semsan, of Blackwood, N. J., was found on a midtown street shortly after midnight, suffering a brain concussion and a fractured leg. The other, Alexander Leach, of Philadelphia, was found with the same injuries in North Philadelphia.

FIRES IN AREA CAUSE $30,000 LOSS; DWELLING GUTTED; WAREHOUSES AND CONTENTS LOST; TOOL SHED DESTROYED

Explosion of Oil Heater, Ognition of Bottled Gas Results in Great Damage at John Komarnicki's Home, Oxford Valley-Bristol Road — One Warehouse Destroyed and Another Guttled on M. A. Shull Property, With Building Materials Also Prey to Flames — Kaiser Metal Products Tool Shed Razed.

Fires in this area yesterday gutted one dwelling and destroyed the contents; destroyed a large warehouse with building material contents, and swept through a second, smaller warehouse, destroying its contents; also razed a tool shed. The dwelling is located on Oxford Valley-Bristol road; the two warehouses are on Mill Creek road, Falls township; and the tool shed in Bristol borough.

The total loss is approximated in excess of $30,000. Part of this is covered by insurance.

Fire, following the explosion of an oil heater and then what is believed to have been the ignition of bottled gas, gutted the 2½ story stone house on the Oxford Valley-Bristol road, causing a loss estimated at $10,000, yesterday afternoon.

The dwelling, along with its contents, was completely ruined with the exception of the stone walls and a portion of the shingle roof. There was very little insurance, according to the owner.

The property is owned by John Komarnicki who occupied it with his family. Firemen were able to save most of the wood shingle roof. The spread of the flames to a nearby barn was also prevented.

One dog and two cats were victims of the blaze. Mrs. Komarnicki ran from the house to the barn summoning her husband, but upon reaching the barn was so nervous she could not tell her husband of the blaze. Mr. Komarnicki, at the time, was in the stable talking with a neighbor.

Mrs. Komarnicki was taken to the home of Mrs. Katherine Dixon, a neighbor.

In one corner of the building there was an oil heater and with its explosion and the burning of the floor of this room it dropped into a basement. It is believed that a bottled gas container broke loose from its fastenings and the gas ignited.

Firemen were called but found the flames well advanced.

The property on which the warehouses were ablaze is that of Maurice A. Shull, Mill Creek road, Falls twp., contractor and builder. It was about 10:45 last night that a passer-by stopped at the Shull home to inform that he had seen flames in the one warehouse, a converted frame barn, four stories high.

Fire companies from several surrounding communities were summoned, and fought the blaze with water from the canal nearby. The flames quickly licked through the four-story building, burning the contents of molding, window frames, doors, tarpaulins, etc.; this spread to the other two-story frame structure which had been converted into a warehouse also. This was gutted.

Firemen played water on the dwelling, which was located only about 20 feet from the burning structures.

The two structures which were afire are covered by insurance, although the contents are not, states the Shull family. Loss is estimated at $20,000. Firemen remained at the scene until two o'clock this morning. Cause of the blaze is not determined.

Police re-routed traffic over Bristol Pike.

The tool shed which was destroyed by fire was located on the property of Kaiser Metal Products Co. at plant No. 1.

Bristol firemen received two false alarms yesterday. One at 4:45 p. m. was at the rear of what was once known as the Hof Bran, Bristol Pike; the other at 11:15 p. m., to 343 Railroad avenue.

Dr. Bi-lee Tells of An Ancient "Jersey" Edition

NEWTOWN, Jan. 26 — Dr. Henry H. Bisbee, Burlington, N. J., addressed members of Newtown Exchange Club at their dinner meeting, Thursday evening, in the Temperance House.

Dr. Bisbee spoke relative to the volume published in 1778 in England, the title of which is "Concessions and Agreements, Proprietors, Freeholders and Inhabitants of the Province of West New Jersey in America." This volume is identical in many instances to the Bill of Rights, published almost 100 years later. It is on display in Burlington, and Burlington borough council has had copies made with the intention of having each pupil in the public schools of New Jersey have a copy.

Burlington is this year celebrating its 275th anniversary and the Exchangees were invited to visit the town.

Dr. Bisbee was presented by Stanford Roberts, chairman of the program committee for this month. Norman Vogel, of Bristol Exchange Club, was also presented.

The short business meeting was conducted by F. Stewart Whittam.

"TALKED" TO SAFETY

Every war has its deeds of magnificent heroism that go un-chronicled only because they are unknown. So, too, does every conflict see lives lost through blunders or saved by the alertness of individuals. In the latter category there came from Korea a figureative came that must never tarnish.

Lieut. John Grubb was piloting his B-26 on a strafing run in North Korea when an anti-aircraft shell hit the canopy of his plane and exploded in his face.
Sightless and his face streaming with blood, he shouted over his intercommunication radio: "I am blinded—I can't see!"

Fortunately at Grubb's base was Lieut. Vincent Alessi, who knew that nobody but the pilot could reach the controls of a B-26.
Instantly he realized that the blinded man had to be "talked" to safety. He was as much Navigator Alessi as if he were sitting behind the stricken pilot. For a long hour he directed the latter's every act: "Down a little . . . a little to the left . . . slower." Then, after what might have seemed ages to both men: "We're down, Johnny—put on the brakes!"

Semiconscious, Grubb put on the emergency brake by mistake.
The tires blew out, but the plane did not upset. A brave pilot was saved by another man's presence of mind, and he sees again. Roxbury, Mass., thinking of Lieutenant Alessi must thrill today to the thought of "home town boy makes good."

HORSE OR NO HORSE

When is a horse not a horse?
Perhaps that's a silly question, but it has been asked, quite seriously, in a court of law.

A magistrate in Roselle Park,
N. J., was all for levying a $10 fine, with costs, against a defendant charged with "harboring" a horse in violation of a new health code. Then the defendant's attorney interposed, saying that the horse wasn't a horse.

The judge didn't take that too seriously. The sentiment is commonly expressed by bettors whose choice has failed to run in the money. He asked the lawyer what the horse was if it wasn't a horse.
The lawyer said it was a pony.

A horseman's encyclopedia, he said, ought to know the difference between a pony and a horse. It definitely distinguishes, he said, pointing out that a pony has different habits, disposition and diet —and is more rugged, to boot. But the lawyer failed to point to any differences between a horse and a pony that would concern a health code.

Sometimes, however, the law is queer. It is at such times that there is strong temptation to quote the character—in Dickens, isn't it?—
who said, "The law is an ass."
That, at least, isn't a horse.

Health Dept. to Wage Campaign for Sanitation

"before the routine inspection system was started last spring.

"Many of these veterans had been victimized by unscrupulous building contractors who sold them homes in localities where there was no room for the installation of adequate waste disposal systems."
In other cases the contractor did not provide an installation which would operate efficiently, he added.
VA and FHA regulations now provide for State inspection of sanitary facilities before homes financed through them can be constructed.

The health chief advised all prospective purchasers of homes to contact the department to determine the type of waste disposal system they should install.

Teague at the start of the campaign outlined inspection procedure to all State district medical directors, county medical directors and sanitation assistants.

The service is available to any home buyer in the State although it was designed primarily for VA and FHA home developments.

Complainants, according to Teague, had said that sanitary facilities had become inoperative after they moved into the homes and then had to stand the cost of repair and improvement themselves.

Mass migration of families from cities to suburban areas in the last few years gave rise in many cases of hurried construction which resulted in unsatisfactory waste disposal units put into the homes, the department reported.

mother are the heirs. The decedent died Jan. 12, 1951.

A Doylestown testator, Albert
White, Jr., who died Nov. 23, 1951, bequeathed St. Paul's Lutheran Church $500 as an endowment.

The testator, who made his will Sept. 23, 1939, left a personal estate of $5,000 and real estate, located here and in Warminster twp.,
valued at $15,000.

Real estate consists of five house-es, 269 to 276 North Main street, here, and a house and lot in War-minster twp. Lester Kohl, 376 North Main street, was named executor.

Beneficiaries included Lester
Kohl, $500, Dorothy T. Kepler, houses, No. 269-271 North Main street. Houses No. 272, 274 and 276 shall be sold and the heirs shall be Charles, Edwin and Elmer White and Mildred Weikel. Residuary beneficiaries are Lester Kohl, of town; Ella Hoops, Morristown, N. J., and Dorothy Boyd, Mt. Holly, N. J.

Two daughters, Margaret G.
Weishaar, 1218 West Broad street, Quakertown, who was named executrix, and Helen Sterling Pederson, will inherit the $9,000 personal estate of their mother, Helen May Granger, Quakertown. The testatrix who also owned real estate in New York, died Nov. 4, 1951. She wrote her will May 29, 1940, and the real estate in New York was not appraised.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS
By FRANK R. KENT
Biased Advice Is Bad
WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.

Most persons will agree that if there is any administration agency which should be free from politics and partisanship, it is the so-called President's Council of Economic Advisers. This group, headed by Mr. Leon Keyserling, is supposed to keep the President informed as to the economic situation and make recommendations upon which he can rely as sound.

In other words, its function is to give him facts, analysis and interpretation upon which to base his economic policies. Clearly, if these are biased the advice of the council becomes worthless. It is unpleasant to state but it is certainly the truth that a good many informed persons, including some really eminent economists and industrialists think it is exactly that. They have increasingly felt that way since the distinguished Dr. Edwin G. Nourse retired as its head because he could not follow Administration lines. At that time there was opposition to the appointment as his successor of Mr. Keyserling, who had been completely identified with the New Deal and Fair Deal policies from the time of their inception in 1933.

He then was legislative clerk to the late Senator Robert Wagner, author of the Wagner Labor Act and a hero of the labor union bosses. Later he held a succession of New Deal jobs, mostly with the Housing Authority, finally becoming vice chairman of the economic council, and with Dr. Nourse's departure, chairman. The impression prevails in various quarters that what Mr. Keyserling really does is fit the economic facts into the New Deal and Fair Deal theories rather than interpret them realistically and without prejudice. Perhaps this is natural and not intentional. For nearly twenty years he has been completely steeped in the New Deal-Fair Deal economic policies, in the soundness of which undoubtedly he sincerely believes. Most of the best qualified economists in the country regard these policies as inherently unsound. It is therefore inevitable that many of them should regard Mr. Keyserling as a not particularly sound adviser for the President.

A vigorous, voluble man, a great writer of letters and maker of speeches, Mr. Keyserling appears never to cherish the slightest doubt of the correctness of his own opinions and always expresses them forcefully. Since the present crisis arose, several things have contributed to the belief that his economic views are inseparable from the spending policies with which for so many years he has been saturated. For one thing, he is on record as suggesting that non-defense expenditures can increase with defense expenditures. Every now and then he says something about economy, but if non-defense expenditures are not to be curtailed, it is hard to understand the Keyserling idea. On this question he does not see eye to eye with Senator Byrd or Mr. Hoover and certainly not with the National Association of Manufacturers or any other agency which has called for non-defense reductions from $4,000,000,000 to $9,000,000,000.

For another thing he is not entirely in accord with Mr. Baruch as to inflation controls, which include a really effective ceiling on wages as well as on profits. Actually, Mr. Keyserling has lent support to wage increases followed by price increases which have promoted inflation. A week or so ago on a television program he expressed his view that the steelworkers should have an increase and the steel companies, perhaps, a small increase in prices. Asked if this would not promote inflation, he was vague and evasive. This expression of views from a Government official was sharply criticized as being highly improper while negotiations were going on and the Government trying to force an agreement. Also it has been reported in print that War Mobilizer Wilson regards Mr. Keyserling's economic advice as definitely unhelpful. The Keyserling theme song is that production takes care of practically everything. If that rises, then the national income rises, and all is well.

But even more offensive to the hard-headed men in the defense effort than its slightly weird economic theories is the suspicion that the council can never be free from Administration politics and, therefore, can never give the President disinterested and sound advice. This suspicion was strengthened by the recent appointment of Mr. Bertam M. Gross, executive secretary of the Council of Economic Advisers, to the staff of the Democratic National Committee. The announcement was made by Chairman McKinney, approved by President Truman and reportedly recommended by Mr. Keyserling. The function of Mr. Gross will be to assemble and interpret the financial facts of the nation so that the noble Democratic candidates and propagandists in the coming campaign can answer the wicked Republican charge of

Residents Protest Reading
Halt Service

WILL GO TO COURT

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 26—(INS)—A commuters committee of several hundred residents of Hatboro and New Hope yesterday filed a petition with the State Superior Court asking the right to appeal a Public Utility Commission order which would discontinue Reading Railroad passenger train service between the towns and substitute bus service instead.

The petition was signed by committee president Ford R. Jennings and was filed by attorney Lois G. Forer. The PUC handed down its order Dec. 27 last.

The committee charged the PUC order was "unreasonable and erroneous" in several particulars. It said the company had used "hypothetical" figures to show revenue and expenses. It charged the company failed to show bus service would not inconvenience residents in the two communities.

of illusion was held in place by a crown of seed pearls. White kid slippers completed her costume. She carried a cascade of white roses with an orchid center.

Her sister, Miss Dolores Stanton, as maid of honor, was attired in yellow taffeta, the bodice of which had a round neckline with a bertha of the same material. The full skirt was worn with a hoop. A ruffled taffeta headpiece held the shoulder-length veil in place. Three bridesmaids wore gowns made on the same lines as that of the maid of honor. Mrs. Joseph Dillon, sister of the bridegroom, wore lavender; Miss Elizabeth Stanton, sister of the bride, wore rose; and Miss Patricia Speakman, poude blue. They wore small sweetheart bouquets of taffeta in matching colors. The four attendants wore white slippers, and carried nosegays of roses with matching taffeta holders. Miss Stanton carried lavender roses; Mrs. Dillon, yellow; Miss Elizabeth Stanton blue and Miss Speakman pink.

Little "Judy" Adams, Philadelphia, niece of the bridegroom, was the flower girl. She wore a shepherdess gown of gold taffeta, with short puffed sleeves. The skirt had several pick-ups in the front to reveal rows of lace. She wore a heart-shaped bonnet of matching taffeta. White slippers completed her attire and she carried a nosegay of red roses with matching holder. The former Miss Stanton presented her attendants with gold bracelets.

A breakfast was served to members of the bridal party at the Stanton home. A reception was scheduled in the Bristol Terrace community hall for 150 guests.

For the ceremony, Mrs. Stanton, mother of the bride wore black crepe with aqua trim and black accessories. Mrs. Benneman, the bridegroom's mother, chose a navy blue print with navy blue accessories. Both wore red rose corsages. For her honeymoon trip to New York, N. Y., Mrs. Benneman has selected maroon gabardine suit, maroon slippers, hat, bag; white gloves and a beige coat. She will wear the orchid from her bridal bouquet. The newly-weds will reside in a apartment at Wood and Dorrance streets. The bride is an employee of the Atlantic Tea Packing Co. and Mr. Benneman is employed by Barker & Williamson.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS
By FRANK R. KENT
Biased Advice Is Bad
WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.

Most persons will agree that if there is any administration agency which should be free from politics and partisanship, it is the so-called President's Council of Economic Advisers. This group, headed by Mr. Leon Keyserling, is supposed to keep the President informed as to the economic situation and make recommendations upon which he can rely as sound.

In other words, its function is to give him facts, analysis and interpretation upon which to base his economic policies. Clearly, if these are biased the advice of the council becomes worthless. It is unpleasant to state but it is certainly the truth that a good many informed persons, including some really eminent economists and industrialists think it is exactly that. They have increasingly felt that way since the distinguished Dr. Edwin G. Nourse retired as its head because he could not follow Administration lines. At that time there was opposition to the appointment as his successor of Mr. Keyserling, who had been completely identified with the New Deal and Fair Deal policies from the time of their inception in 1933.

He then was legislative clerk to the late Senator Robert Wagner, author of the Wagner Labor Act and a hero of the labor union bosses. Later he held a succession of New Deal jobs, mostly with the Housing Authority, finally becoming vice chairman of the economic council, and with Dr. Nourse's departure, chairman. The impression prevails in various quarters that what Mr. Keyserling really does is fit the economic facts into the New Deal and Fair Deal theories rather than interpret them realistically and without prejudice. Perhaps this is natural and not intentional. For nearly twenty years he has been completely steeped in the New Deal-Fair Deal economic policies, in the soundness of which undoubtedly he sincerely believes. Most of the best qualified economists in the country regard these policies as inherently unsound. It is therefore inevitable that many of them should regard Mr. Keyserling as a not particularly sound adviser for the President.

A vigorous, voluble man, a great writer of letters and maker of speeches, Mr. Keyserling appears never to cherish the slightest doubt of the correctness of his own opinions and always expresses them forcefully. Since the present crisis arose, several things have contributed to the belief that his economic views are inseparable from the spending policies with which for so many years he has been saturated. For one thing, he is on record as suggesting that non-defense expenditures can increase with defense expenditures. Every now and then he says something about economy, but if non-defense expenditures are not to be curtailed, it is hard to understand the Keyserling idea. On this question he does not see eye to eye with Senator Byrd or Mr. Hoover and certainly not with the National Association of Manufacturers or any other agency which has called for non-defense reductions from $4,000,000,000 to $9,000,000,000.

For another thing he is not entirely in accord with Mr. Baruch as to inflation controls, which include a really effective ceiling on wages as well as on profits. Actually, Mr. Keyserling has lent support to wage increases followed by price increases which have promoted inflation. A week or so ago on a television program he expressed his view that the steelworkers should have an increase and the steel companies, perhaps, a small increase in prices. Asked if this would not promote inflation, he was vague and evasive. This expression of views from a Government official was sharply criticized as being highly improper while negotiations were going on and the Government trying to force an agreement. Also it has been reported in print that War Mobilizer Wilson regards Mr. Keyserling's economic advice as definitely unhelpful. The Keyserling theme song is that production takes care of practically everything. If that rises, then the national income rises, and all is well.

But even more offensive to the hard-headed men in the defense effort than its slightly weird economic theories is the suspicion that the council can never be free from Administration politics and, therefore, can never give the President disinterested and sound advice. This suspicion was strengthened by the recent appointment of Mr. Bertam M. Gross, executive secretary of the Council of Economic Advisers, to the staff of the Democratic National Committee. The announcement was made by Chairman McKinney, approved by President Truman and reportedly recommended by Mr. Keyserling. The function of Mr. Gross will be to assemble and interpret the financial facts of the nation so that the noble Democratic candidates and propagandists in the coming campaign can answer the wicked Republican charge of reckless spending, unrestrained waste, unmanageable debt and deficit. It is asserted that Mr. Gross is just the man to do this, that this is really what he does anyhow, that the only difference now is that he will put in all of his time at it and be paid by the Democratic committee. Considering all these things, it seems a strain on anyone's credulity to regard the advice of the economic council as wholly unbiased. And if it isn't that, what is it worth?

MORRISVILLE, Jan. 26—Chimarring weeks of discussion, Morrisville businessmen have agreed to give $50,000 toward the development of a proposed mid-town parking project. An additional $50,000 will be needed to purchase property and for development of the land.

Irving B. Levinson, president of the Morrisville Businessmen's Association, and T. Sidney Calwallader, attorney for a group of merchants, voiced the opinion that the money would be raised soon.

Irving B. Levinson, president of the Morrisville Businessmen's Association, and T. Sidney Calwallader, attorney for a group of merchants, voiced the opinion that the money would be raised soon.

Besides planning to buy the old Presbyterian Church property facing Union street for $67,500, the group also won the release consent from Paul Sullivan, owner of a parcel next to the church. The two properties would give the project a 500-foot frontage. Sullivan was praised by Levinson for his civic mindedness.

In an endeavor to extend Washington street, now dead-ended at Bridge street, to provide access from Bridge street into the parking lot, the group is seeking the cooperation of J. Headley Howell, hardware merchant, who owns dwellings on Bridge street, facing the end of Washington street.

The project is slated to provide space for 300 to 350 cars. Levinson announced that contacts would be made with business leaders Monday for investments in the project.

HIGH SCHOOL TEAM STEPS BACK INTO LEAGUE BATTLE

FALLSINGTON, Jan. 26—Bristol High stepped back into the Lower Bucks County League picture last night as it came through with a 66-50 win over Pennsbury High on the latter's court. The Warriors are now but one game behind the league-leading Morrisville High team.

In handing the Falcons their fifth straight loss, Coach Ben Watson's team met with more than it bargained for as Ray Bray was having one of his scoring nights. Bray's accurate shooting and ability to get the ball kept Pennsbury in the game for three quarters and it wasn't until the final session that Bristol managed to pull away for a real comfortable margin.

Score at the end of the first quarter was 14-12 with Bristol ahead and Bray scoring one-half of the Pennsbury points. Bristol was behind at the half-time buzzer, 23-26, with Bray accounting for 8 points in this quarter and Scanlon, 5. Bristol during this half was dividing its scoring.

In the third quarter, Andy Accardi began to find the range of the basket and sunk in six field goals to help the Warriors to a 46-38 lead. During this session, Walt Holden was guarding Bray closely and held him to a single field goal. Bristol also outscored their opponent in the last quarter.

Accardi ended up with 26 Bristol points on 12 and 2 while Bray was close behind with 24 points. Bob Stroble accounted for 18 Bristol points.

Bristol's record for the season is eight wins and four losses.

BENSALEM TOPS HATFIELD IN A ONE-SIDED GAME

HATFIELD, Jan. 26 — Bensalem Township High scored 31 field goals as it whipped Hatfield High, 70-42, in a one-sided game here last night.

With the exception of Padbury, every player in the Bensalem line-up had at least one field goal and during the entire final quarter and most of the third period, Coach Johnny Messinger used his second-string team.

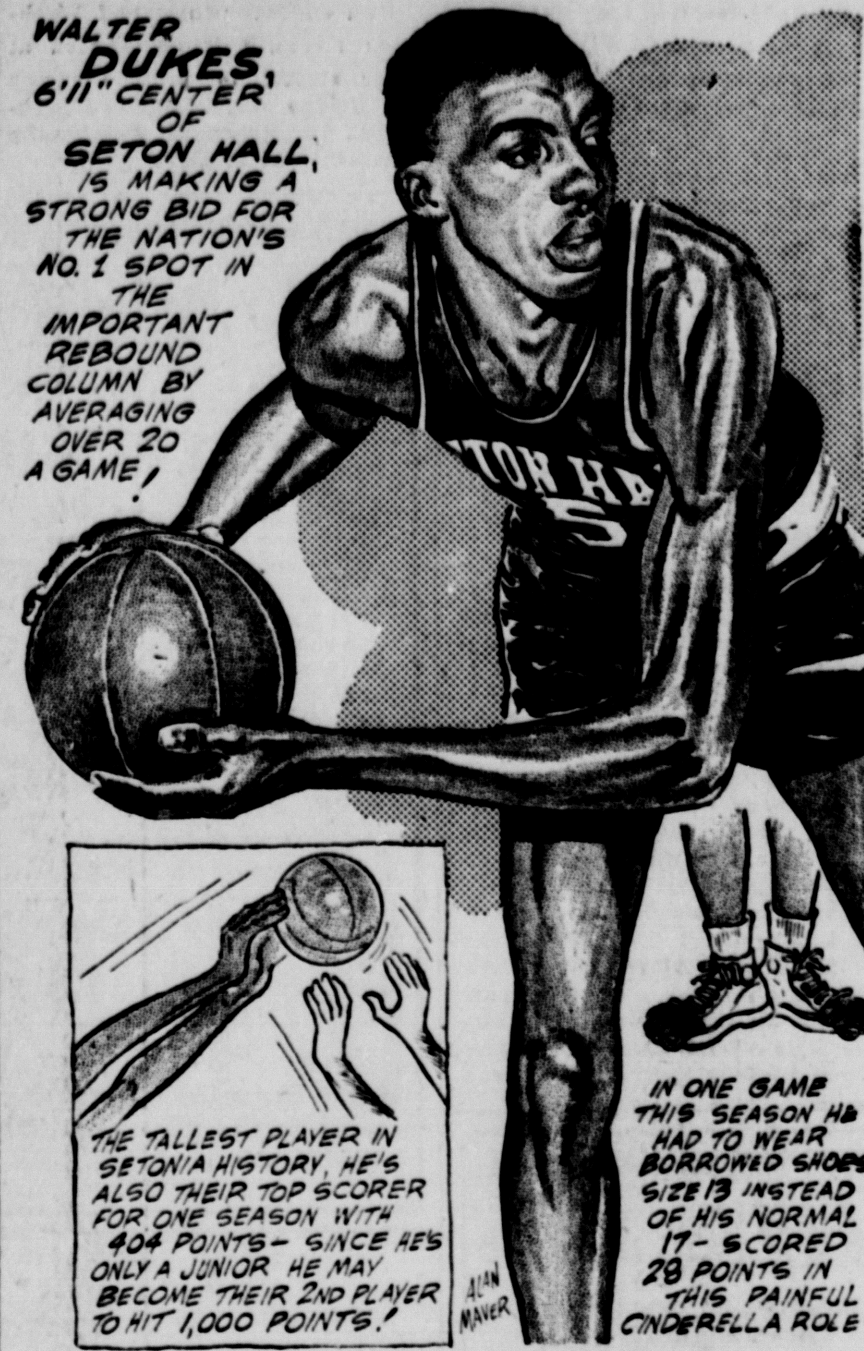

Bensalem had the lead from the start and at the end of the first half were 18 points ahead, 35-17.

Bob Whitfield was high man for the winners with 7 double-deckers and three fouls for 17 points. Russ Struble tabbed 12 points. For Hatfield, Denny Moore was tops with 17 points on eight fielders and one foul.

The triumph evened Bensalem's record for the season with four and four.

The Bensalem Junior High was also victorious, beating Hatfield Junior High, 39-28. A strong sec-

at the home were given emphasis by means of snap-shots which she passed through the audience. Of particular interest was the "light" and delight on the face of a small girl as she opened her CARE package. In spite of the fact that the contents were butter, powdered milk and cheese, the recipient's joy knew no bounds, according to Miss Rouner, the latter being disappointed that no chocolate bars, the thrill of thrills to the needy children abroad, were included.

The club women listened with particular attention to details of the opening of boxes of used clothing received at the home—one little girl being so happy over a fur-lined coat that she couldn't make up her mind whether to wear the fur inside or outside. The boys, in turn, were particularly pleased with zip-pers on their parka jackets. This box of clothing, sent through the American Friends Service Committee, contained complete winter outfits for the one group of children. "It was like Christmas," commented the speaker.

That the method of democratic rule put into practice in the school was entirely new to the girls and boys in a land where the man of the house has always ruled absolutely was mentioned. "When they found they were not punished for running away, the thrill of running away disappeared," Miss Rouner recalled. "And in all, they were a happy group of children, who decided in their own small groups just what punishment should be meted out for misdeeds."

Tea was poured by Mrs. Richard T. Myers and Mrs. John A. Moyer.

Tax Planned, Real Estate Transactions

Justice Department, "just so its paid."

He said agreements between the two parties could be made for payment of the levy. It could either be split between the two or paid by one.

The Budget Department reported: "We can't answer the question, because we don't know."

The Revenue Department which will be the chief collector is going to put out a set of regulations governing the "technicalities" of the act. However, there was no simple clarification from this source.

"In view of all these complications and disagreements," said the president of the Pennsylvania Realtors Association, "the new realty transfer tax most certainly will be very complex to administer."

The realty group was unsuccessful in lobbying against the bill. It also is at odds with the State Budget Office over how much the tax will produce.

The latest estimate from the Budget Office is $20,000,000. This is a million dollars higher than the original estimate.

The realty Association claims the yield will be closer to $30 million. Real estate transfers in Pennsylv-

MRS. VIOLA W. TEGGE

PARKLAND, Jan. 26—Stricken ill while visiting here, Mrs. Viola W. Tegge, 62, Baltimore, Md., died this morning in Jeannes Hospital, Philadelphia. Mrs. Tegge had been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Charles Johnson, Avenue F. Another daughter, Mrs. William J. Blakely, Baltimore, also survives; as do several grandchildren. Mrs. Tegge was the daughter of the late George and Harriet Allen Weaver. Service will be conducted at the Wm. Dunn funeral home, Langhorne, at 11 a. m. Wednesday. The Rev. Roger Hillis, of Parkland Community Chapel, will officiate. Burial will be made in St. Luke's Reformed Cemetery, Trappe. Friends may call Tuesday evening.

Deepening The Channel

heavy expenditures as $400,000 for a revetment past Bristol, or the impossible load of promising to repay such damages as may be caused by the project.

Bristol Borough didn't ask for the deeper channel, and neither did Bristol Township. Any benefits they may receive are negligible by comparison with the great costs being saddled upon Lower Bucks County by the huge population growth now under way.

The deeper channel will help primarily two interests—first, the Fairless Steel plant, which would then be able to bring in its ore in ocean-going vessels; and, second, Uncle Sam, who urgently needs additional steel to meet the world crisis.

It would be completely unfair to ask this region, already facing big new financial burdens which are far outstripping all tax revenues thus far in sight, to underwrite the damages which may be caused by a project intended to benefit quite different groups.

The people of the Bristol community are entitled to have firm assurance that they will not be expected to finance big and costly programs of a protective nature which are clearly part of the channel project itself, nor be expected to absorb the costs of whatever damage may result.

Those on human rights, communications, status of women, narcotic drugs, etc.—were discussed briefly.

Miss Rouner impressed on the group how the organizations within the U. N. are working to build a better world community.

The address of the day was pre-faced with "international" music—the piano solo being as follows: "Autumn" (Chaminade) from France; Brahms' Waltz No. 8 from Germany; and "Country Gardens" from England. The musician was Mrs. David M. Sheerer, Jr.

Mrs. Robert D. Brooks, club president, conducted a business meeting. She called upon Mrs. Harry T. Neher to lead in a prayer for peace; and Mrs. Frank S. Weik for minutes of the last meeting. Mrs. Sheerer gave a resume of the address of the main speaker at the Bucks Co. Federation of Women's Clubs mid-winter conference.

Mrs. Charles T. Simpson, chairman of legislation, urged immediate action on the part of members—she asking that they write their congressmen and the president asking immediate action on the Hoover Commission reforms and better defense production to aid the fighting men of the U. S. This suggestion was seconded by Mrs. Elwood P. Goslin, chairman of public affairs committee.

Tea was poured by Mrs. Richard T. Myers and Mrs. John A. Moyer.
